HURRICANE TAKES DEVASTATING TOLL ON ATLANTIC COAST

Many Dead and Injured, 2,000 Homeless, in Gale's Path.

TOWNS INUNDATED

Fear One Swept Away; Terror Grips City of Norfolk.

By The Associated Press

Tropical hurricans struck the Atlantic coast yesterday and today, left at least six dead, 50 injured and 2,000 homeless in the Tampico district of Mexico, and were reported to have swept away one small city on the coast of North Carolina.

Several other towns were inundated and the storm which struck North Carolina raged on toward the Virginia coast.

Two persons were drowned off the American coast and a third was missing in a boat.

Apprehension gripped Norfolk, Va., where the full fury of the storm was expected to strike later in the day. Coast resorts there were being rapidly evacuated.

Gales and high tides swept over the coast in advance of devastating winds.

A coast guard reported by wireless that the highest tide on record had inundated New Bern, N. C., and flooded other waterfront cities.

Wires were down and Morehead City, N. C., was cut off from the rest of the world, its roads blocked with debris and its communications stopped.

Ships hugged the coast line. The seas were described as mountainous. The wind blew 80 to 100 miles an hour. Torrential rains beat down.

A first report sent from the office of Pan American Airways at Tampico, Mex., said that 32 were believed dead in that district. Later, corrected advices reduced this number to six.

Cold rain that swept New York and the New Jersey coast for two days and nights slackened early today leaving many streets and cellars flooded.

Heavy seas and high tide continued to menace New Jersey shore resorts and historic barnegat lightship was in danger. The surf dashed over projecting jetties to within five feet of its base.

Coast guardsmen stood by on the beach at Deal, N. J., ready to shoot a line, if necessary, to six men on two barges anchored a quarter-mile out. The barges were cut off from tow because of the heavy sea.

NEW DEBT IDEA

That the French government issue "tourist money" to pay its war debt to the United States is the proposal of James W. Gerard (above), former U. S. ambassador to Germany. Mr. Gerard proposes that the U. S. in turn sell the "tourist money" at a discount to American tourists on the premise that the notes would be spent only in France. (International News Service.)

Move To Evade Tax Placed on Brokerage Transactions in New York.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 16—Harry H. Picking, vice president of the New Jersey Registration & Trust company, announced he was filing today the incorporation papers of a securities market, to be known as the National Stock exchange, and to operate in this city.

Two of the officers of the new exchange, Picking disclosed, are members of the New York Stock exchange. The president will be Col. William Freiday of South Orange.

Col. Freiday was quoted by a local newspaper as saying of the incorporation that the object of the new exchange is to establish itself in Newark to carry on the business now conducted in New York in order to avoid the city's recently imposed taxes on brokerage transactions.

NEW TAX HUNT TO CONTINUE

House Refuses To Adjourn Before Aiding Weak Schools.

RECESSES UNTIL MONDAY

Legislature Urged To Await Action of Voters in November.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 16—The hunt for new revenues to finance Ohio's weaker schools will be resumed by the legislature next week.

This was assured with the house vote late yesterday rejecting a resolution to adjourn the special session sine die without action on a school program.

Adjournment had been proposed by house leaders. They argued that defeat of the one per cent sales tax had removed all possibility of ultimate success in the struggle for agreement.

The house thought otherwise, however, and recessed only until Monday night. Apparently as determined to attack the problem again, the senate decided to return Tuesday night.

Favor Delay

Those favoring adjournment contended the school program should be delayed until after the November election. Then the people will vote on prohibition repeal and a constitutional amendment to lower the limitation on real estate taxes to 10 mills.

If repeal comes liquor taxes would be available for schools or other purposes. Approval of the amendment would mean a five-mill cut in property taxes and the legislature then would have to revamp the entire tax system.

Thus, any taxation program enacted now must be of the "stop-gap" variety, effective only until the election results are known.

The adjournment resolution was offered by Representative Keith Lawrence of Cleveland, the Democratic floor leader.

Aid Inevitable

"You all know," he told his colleagues, "that schools must and will be taken care of. You all know it is inevitable that we will have to raise funds after the November election. Schools will stay open even though we don't raise money in the next two or three months.

"If leaders of this house thought anything could be done now we would stay here and do it."

The joint tax committee, which recommended the sales tax, scheduled no week-end meetings but announced it would be ready to take up the problem anew early next week.

Among other things, the committee is considering as part of a possible new program a chain store tax, an increased tax on public utilities, and a high assessment on medicinal liquors.

Also awaiting legislative action is the bill proposing state aid for parochial schools. A vote was delayed following rejection of the sales tax.

ASKS "BREAK" FOR OLDER WORKERS

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 16—A "break" for those workers who are growing past the heydey of life was asked in telegrams sent to Secretary Ickes and NRA officials by Charles F. Williams, NRA administrator for Cincinnati.

Williams suggested that allotment of federal funds for public works be conditioned upon elimination of the age factor in hiring workers.

Unnecessary hardship, he telegraphed, may be worked on men 45 years or older by contracting firms prefering younger workers. He pointed out that most men of 45 are heads of families.

10,000 THRONG FAIR GROUNDS; CLOSES TODAY

Good Crowd Expected for Races as Favorable Weather Arrives.

SALT ROCK PULLERS WIN

Board Selects Same Dates for Exposition Next Year.

A crowd estimated at 10,000 persons attended the Marion county fair yesterday and last night after rainfall which upset Wednesday and Thursday programs had given way to more favorable weather.

Cheered by yesterday's attendance, fair officials looked to a large crowd expected on the grounds today to make the fair a success despite the inclement weather of the second and third days.

Nearly 2,000 persons saw a Salt Rock township team win from Big Island township in the finals of the tug-of-war tournament last night. Big Island township was given second money and the Pollak Steel Mill team, defeating Prospect township in the runner-up pull, won third money.

Races on Today

The program for this afternoon included three harness race events, a 2:28 pace, a classified handicap trot and pace, and a 2:20 pace. A parachute jump was booked for 6 p. m. and the midway of concessions and sideshows was to continue operations tonight, although the fair board late yesterday abandoned its plans to have a program in front of the grandstand tonight.

Inability of aerialists and acrobats to remain in Marion for tonight's program, and the removal of most exhibits and stock entries from the grounds last night led fair officials to give up the night program, they said.

An unscheduled event that attracted considerable attention was the challenge of nine grade school children, offering to pull in a tug-of-war against any two men from the teams entered in the tournament. Two men acceped the challenge and suffered defeat within a few seconds as the juvenile challengers, in the words of a spectator, "walked away with them."

1934 Date Set

In the afternoon program yesterday, Secretary C. G. Ritzler announced the fair board had decided to hold the 1934 fair in the same week of September.

Plans for payment of premiums will be announced within 10 days, fair board members said.

Joke Is Played by Grandmother; Sheriff Called

An aged Marion county grandmother played a practical joke last night, and was hunted with shotgun when mistaken for a burglar.

This was disclosed this morning by a deputy from the sheriff's office, who was called to a farm home near here last night at 11 to investigate telephone reports from a farmer that "someone's ransacking my house." He said he saw figures moving in the house when he and his family returned home after attending the fair last night.

By the time officers arrived at the farm, the farmer had entered the house after arming himself with a shotgun. There was grandmother, aged 86, crouched in a corner and partially covered with a robe.

"I wanted to surprise you," she said. Later she explained she had come to the home for a visit, found it empty and decided to hide when she heard the family returning. While moving to a hiding place, she was [illegible] by the head of the [illegible] "crouching [illegible] deputy was [illegible]

WELLES HOLDS SECRET MEET

U. S. Ambassador Makes First Contract With New Cuban Government.

REFUSES TO COMMENT

Students Say American Approves Pro-Government Program of Directorate.

(Copyright, 1933,
By The Associated Press).

HAVANA, Sept. 16 American Ambassador Sumner Welles held a long secret session today with a committee of the student directorate, staunch supporters of President Grau San Martin.

This was the ambassador's first contact with the new government and came at a time when Grau San Martin, in another closed meeting, told his strongest opponents that he would not accede to their demands that he resign the presidency, to which he ascended less than a week ago.

Welles was said by a student spokesman to have expressed approval of the directorate's pro-government program.

Explanation Sought

The ambassador left the conference apparently well pleased but did not comment. A student representative said Welles had sought an explanation of criticism directed at him in some quarters and had denied rumors he was protecting 500 army and navy officers entrenched in the National hotel.

The student spokesman quoted the ambassador as saying there would be no American intervention in Cuba, although it is possible American marines may be landed if the lives and property of Americans in Cuba are menaced.

Welles and the committee met in the home of Eduardo Chibas, secretary of public works under Carlos Manuel De Cespedes, whose return to the presidency is sought by the officers in the hotel.

Continue Blockade

Afterwards, students took positions near the hotel and compelled residents in the Vedado section to drive 16 blocks out of their way to reach their homes.

They said the government had been informed that the besieged officers planned to start firing on the 500 soldiers and students who held them virtual prisoners in the fortress-like hostelry, in which the officers are supplied with many guns.

Meanwhile, powerful forces, including the A B C and O C R R secret societies, the nationalist followers of Col. Carlos Mendieta, and supporters of former President Mario G. Menocal, during a protracted session, insisted Grau San Martin make way for a new government of national scope.

RIDGEWAY GETS PEN TERM FOR SHOOTING

Pleads Guilty To Indictment; Wife Slowly Dying in Marion Hospital.

Joseph Ridgeway, 39, of Richwood, was sentenced to from one to 20 years at hard labor in the Ohio state penitentiary when he pleaded guilty late yesterday afternoon in the Union county common pleas court at Marysville to an indictment charging him with shooting his wife with intent to kill.

His wife, Mrs. Mina Ridgeway, 35, is dying slowly at the City hospital here. It is only a matter of time before the strong constitution that has kept her alive gives way, hospital attaches say. Ridgeway shot four bullets into her body July 10 at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ethel Emerick of near Richwood, after she refused to return home with him. One of the bullets lodged against her spine and paralyzed the lower part of her body. She has remained conscious throughout all of the weeks she has been at the hospital. Youngster Holds 7-Hole Lead After 18 Holes; Smashes Course Record.

By The Associated Press

KENWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 16 Smashing the course record with a 68, three under par, George T. Dunlap Jr., 24-year-old New Yorker, piled up an overwhelming margin of seven up over Max R. Marston of Philadelphia, veteran former title holder today in the first 18 holes of their 36-hole match for the U. S. amateur golf championship.

Dunlap shot one of the greatest rounds in the history of the American championship. Gray haired veterans of golf could not recall anything like it since Bobby Jones beat Chick Evans in the final round at Minekhada in 1927, when the great Georgian played 31 out and 36 back for a 67.

Dunlay was never once off the fairway. He never missed a green with his approach though he was once or twice on the edge. He made only one real mistake in the entire round. That was when he three-putted and lost the seventh hole.

Marston captured only two holes, the seventh and eighth, and halved only seven others.

Dunlap was never once off the them due to marvelous approaches, one on the short twelfth, where his tee shot stopped 18 inches from the cup. Marston played some good golf at times but he was wild off the tees, and his accuracy with the irons fell off under pressure.

Dunlap's score was a stroke better than the previous competitive course record, 69, set in the qualifying round by Jim Milward of Madison, Wis., and equalled by Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati in establishing a new qualifying mark.

A crowd that mounted to more than 2,500 spectators by the time they were coming down the stretch, gasped at Dunlap's shot making.

Jones, who followed the entire round, paid tribute to Dunlap's golf as one of the most brilliant rounds he ever saw.

"He had every shot in the bag and he looked great," said Bob.

ONE HUNTER KILLED, MANY ARE WOUNDED

Opening of Squirrel Season Results in Accidents; Thousands Tramp Fields.

By The Associated Press

The booming of shot-guns resounded through the wooded sections of Ohio today on the season's second day of squirrel hunting.

As thousands tramped the countryside yesterday, hunting accidents brought injuries to many and death to at least one hunter.

David Deiderich, 41, of Huntington township, Lorain county, was shot to death in the barren forests near Clarksfield, O., when his hunting companion, George Millis of Cleveland, fired, thinking he saw a squirrel. Coroner C. L. Bell of Norwalk said he would return a verdict of accidental death.

Ray M. White, 26, publisher of the Millersburg Farmer-Hub, and Mark Jenkinson, southeastern Ohio boxing promoter, hunting near Athens, were wounded slightly and near Martins Ferry Edward Smith, 18, was hurt slightly by shot from the gun of a companion.

Near Avon, O., Ben Nagel was wounded by buckshot, and P. S. Looney, 28, was the first casualty in the Akron area. He was wounded slightly in the forehead.

TRAPPED IN CAR AS FIRE BURNS SAFETY CORD

Unable To Stop Train, Local Man Faces Death from Caledonia To Marion.

LOSS PLACED AT $50,000

Valuable Shipment of Merchandise Is Destroyed; Sparks Are Blamed.

After riding 10 miles in a blazing express car in which he was trapped, Otto A. Long, 45, of 299 Chestnut street, employe of the Railway Express Agency, early this morning stopped an Erie fast train just east of Marion by hanging out the side door and waving a signal with a flashlight to the locomotive engineer.

The fire, which had burned away the emergency signal cord in the car by the time Long discovered it, did damage estimated by Railway Express Agency officials at between $30,000 and $50,000. Approximately 17 truckloads of merchandise, most of it wearing apparel from New York City, was considered a total loss.

Mr. Long, at his home this morning, said he escaped without burns, although the hair was singed off the back of his hands.

Discovered at Martel

He said he first smelled smoke as the train, Erie No. 1 which is scheduled to arrive here at 2:50 a. m., was passing through Martel. He investigated and discovered the smoke came from the front section of the heavily loaded car. By the time the train reached Caledonia, the car was in flames.

Alone in the car, he reached for the signal cord to stop the train, yanked it, but his signal did not reach the engineer. Fire Chief T. J. McFarland this morning said the fire had severed the signal cord.

Mr. Long said he quickly turned to another emergency signal in the car after learning his first signal had not reached the engineer's cab, but was unable to reach it because of the flames and dense smoke.

Penned in a small section in the middle of the car and unable to communicate with others on the train, Mr. Long was forced to throw open the side door of the speeding car to get air. Holding to the side of the car with one hand and standing on the steps hanging on the side of the car, he flashed his pocket light on the engineer's cab in the hope his signal might be seen.

Heat Becomes Intense

For several minutes, during which the train traveled five miles, his signal was not noticed. Then, as the draft of heat through the open door became so intense that Mr. Long considered trying to crawl under the car, he felt the brakes take hold. The train stopped about one mile east of the Grand avenue crossing.

Trainmen hurriedly decided to take the car to a siding at Grand avenue and disconnect it. The Marion fire department was called.

Firemen temporarily beat down the flames as the car stood on the siding, and removed three truckloads of merchandise, Fire Chief McFarland said. Then it became apparent that the fire was scattered throughout the parcels and boxes and that the car would have to be completely unloaded to put out the fire, he said. Rather than finishing unloading on the siding, trainmen connected the smouldering car to the train and took it to a platform near the Kenton avenue crossing where the expressmen and firemen worked nearly four hours to finish unloading.

Flames broke out repeated as the unloading proceeded, and firemen kept almost a steady stream of water pouring into the car to keep the fire under control. Much of the damage to merchandise, Chief McFarland said, was caused by water.

Fire company No. 1 answered the call to the Grand avenue siding, and company No. 2 joined them when the car was taken to the Kenton avenue crossing.

Sparks Blamed

J. C. Murray of Mansfield, route agent for the Railway Express agency, arrived this morning to take charge of an investigation which had been started by E. J. Salter, Marion agent. Although his investigation was not completed at noon, he expressed the opinion that sparks had started the fire on the front of the car, a wooden structure, fanned by movement of the speeding car, the fire apparently was swept through the parcels in the front of the car, causing the entire section of merchandise in front of Mr. Long to break out in flames, the investigators said.

Another investigation, to be made by the Erie railroad, was expected to get under way early this afternoon.

Hundreds of persons drove to the Kenton avenue crossing of the Erie this morning to see the [illegible]

8 PLANES IN AIR SHOW HERE

Pilots from Norton Field in Columbus Coming Sunday.

Eight new type Waco airplanes will arrive over Marion Sunday about 10 a. m. with sirens screaming as a prelude to an air festival to be presented at 2:30 p. m. at the Marion airport.

The air circus will comprise three hours of fast moving activity, covering nearly every stunt that has been attempted in the air.

The air show features Lieut. Joseph C. Mackey of Columbus, a famous stunt pilot noted for his inverted flying. At 3:30 p. m. Sunday Lieut. Mackey will demonstrate in his ship how various stunts are performed with the ship in an inverted position.

One of the events will be a balloon and ribbon cutting exhibition by Karl F. Steele, flying a tiny mid-wing racing monoplane. Lieut. Bill Aering, in one of the opening events, will do a series of dead stick landings. Starting at an altitude of about 3,000 feet, Aering will cut his engine, float and circle around for three or four minutes and then bring his plane down to within a few feet of his taking off area.

"Dog fights" among several planes are scheduled.

All the pilots are from Norton field in Columbus. The show's personnel includes Lieut. Aering, Lieut. Mackey, Steele, Ronny DeVore, Eddie McVey, Carl V. [illegible], E. O. Newman, Robert [illegible], Art DeBolt and "Billy" Sweet, master of ceremonies and announcer. Lieut. Aering formerly was with the First Pursuit squadron at Selfridge field, one of the United States army fields.

Another phase of the festival will be passenger trips over Marion and vicinity in both open and cabin planes.

An added attraction to the festival will be a delayed parachute jump by Art Kenyon of Marion. Kenyon will jump from a distance of 5,000 feet and will drop a mile before opening his parachute. He will carry a bag of flour to trace his fall. Kenyon has been making jumps at the Marion county fair this week. Plans for his jump Sunday were announced today by Harold Cobb, manager of the Marion airport.

Treatment of Foot Deformity.

[illegible] is aroused at the [illegible] a child with a club foot. It is discouraging to a parent [illegible] defect. He knows that if proper measures had been taken [illegible] the deformity [illegible] corrected. [illegible] advice is sought when it is too late for correction or cure.

Talipes is the medical name for club foot. [illegible] resembles a [illegible] affliction is usually traced to [illegible] or to an [illegible] It may be the result of some disease like infantile paralysis.

Occasionally the affliction involves both feet [illegible] are usually the result of some marked weakness of the muscles and nerves of the feet. If early medical treatment is obtained the deformity can be corrected and often completely cured.

I can not overemphasize the importance of early attention to a deformity of this nature. In cases of congenital club foot it should be treated in infancy or as early as possible. It is only when the affliction is corrected before the bones became firm that complete cure is possible.

In the treatment, the foot is placed in a normal position by means of special manipulation. It is kept in this position by the application of a plaster-of-paris bandage. The cast is kept on for several weeks, then removed and replaced with a supporting bandage.

When the condition is not treated until late childhood has arrived or when the deformity is the result of an infection like infantile paralysis it can only be cured by operation. The operation should not be dreaded. Let me assure the worried mother that it is a simple procedure and when performed by a competent surgeon, has little danger attached to it.

In this operation there is a cutting of the tendon of the foot. This is called a "tenotomy" and after it is performed the afflicted foot is placed in a plaster-of-paris bandage which is kept on until healing takes place. The plaster cast is then removed. The foot is massaged and exercised until the deformity is entirely corrected.

This operation has been successful in many cases of club foot caused by the recent epidemic of infantile paralysis. We are indeed greatful to the improved methods and skill of modern survery. In former years little hope could be offered to victims of this affliction. Today there is great hope for them.

I am often asked whether the "club foot shoe" is of benefit to a victim of club foot. The club foot shoe was used for many years as a remedy for this deformity. Doctors no longer approve of this shoe and it is rarely used. The shoe is [illegible] and disfiguring and seldam leads to a cure.

PICTURE OF HARDING GOES IN COLLECTION

Group of Presidents To Be Placed in Headquarters Used by Washington.

A framed picture of the late President Harding will be placed in the collection of Presidents in the headquarters occupied by Gen. George Washington in 1783 at Rocky Hill, N. J. as the result of a letter yesterday from the custodian of the headquarters to Mayor W. C. Phillians.

The custodian, Thomas Barrowman, wrote Mayor Phillians that he is installing a collection of pictures of all the presidents and requested a picture of Mr. Harding suitable for framing.

Mayor Phillians communicated with Fred Dombaugh, manager of the Harding home, who agreed to furnish a picture of the late president.

Barrowman's letter stated that "since visitors come to the headquarters from every state in the Union," he did not want Ohio visitors to not have a picture of Mr. Harding in the collection.

The headquarters, a rambling white house of two stories, contains many relics of Revolutionary days and is a spot of wide renown throughout the East.

Industrial Accidents Cost $100,000 in Seven Months

Service club ... commis... by Harry ... reads ... that ... sur... cumulative ... time. Mr. ... because the ... and hence ... which ...

... the ... accident ... in... campaign ... statis... of ... indus... the record for Marion county for the first seven months of this year.

Up to August 1, the record show 333 Marion county workers had filed claims with the industrial commission for disability or medical expenses incident to accidents sustained in the course of their employment.

Numbered among these 333 cases were two fatalities, one permanent disability, 83 cases causing over seven days lost time, 32 seven days or less and 215 medical cases causing no time loss. The loss to workers in wage earning capacity totaled 15,689 days. Reduced to dollars and cents this represents an economic loss to workers alone of probably $40,000 and the indirect cost falling upon the employer is far in excess of that amount. It is ultra-conservative to estimate that occupational accidents alone cost Marion county $100,000 in the first seven months of this year, Mr Dowler estimated.

The accidents in the county for the period referred to were distributed among industrial groups as follows: Agriculture 10; building erection and demolition 10; construction other than building erection two; clay, glass and stone products two; foods and beverages 10; laundries one; lumber and wood products three; blast furnaces, steel works and rolling mills 11; assembling and erecting machinery manufacture 30; metal goods manufacture 72; vehicle manufacture three; paper and printing five; textiles and clothing manufacture five; quarries and stone crushing 11; transportation three; utilities seven; cartage and trucking 10; commercial employment 31; clerical and professional seven; care and custody of buildings and grounds 13; public employes 26; miscellaneous four.

If more than one person out of every one hundred in Marion met with an injury in an industrial accident in the first seven months of this year, it is reasonable to suppose that, if the law of average holds good, that six people out of every hundred in the city met with some form of accidental injury in traffic, school or home accidents in the same period and it is safe to assume that more than 90 per cent of them could have been prevented by safety methods or safe practices, Mr. Dowler said.

AUTO TAGS MUST BE VISIBLE, POLICE SAY

State Bureau Starts Drive Against Bumper Protectors.

Bumper protectors which obstruct complete vision of automobile license plates are the object of a drive initiated by state bureau of motor vehicles, according to a letter to Marion police department.

These protectors, composed of upright pieces attached vertically to the bumper, should be so placed as to not hinder sight of the license plates, police said.

From a police identification standpoint, the bureau reported, a concealed or partly concealed license plate is of no value. The department here is asked to warn violators and to prosecute if necessary. A fine of not more than $50 is provided for conviction on this offense.

License plates also must be kept clean and legible at all times, Marion police warned.

Cuba Warned

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 16—Cuba, you better hurry, and get a dictator, a president, a keeper, or something. For one more week is all you got to stay on the front page. When the Giants have won two games, Washington two, and Notre Dame backfield starts percolating, Cuba might just as well be Tasmania as far as the papers are concerned. And that's what makes us a great nation. We take the little things serious and the big ones as a joke.

Many, many people out of work. Some even in actual want, yet carrying on in confidence, and in hope. When the little fellow, that is actually in want, can have faith in his government, by golly, the big ones should certainly carry on, for they have never missed a meal so far.

Yours,

Will Rogers

IN AND AROUND MARION

Catching Up

Fancy, rising at 6 a. m. and dressing to go out for the evening. The young man on South State street didn't fancy it either, when he had to change from his "dress up" clothes in to his work duds and begin his days labors instead of enjoying a talkie.

The young man, South is the name, arrived home before dinner and decided to take a nap until meal time. His mother and his girl found they were dating that evening and let their son sleep on.

When he awoke it was 6 o'clock and the house was strangely quiet, but he thought the family had had an early dinner and gone out for the evening. He bathed and dressed up in his Sunday best and was at work before it dawned on him that he'd slept more than 12 hours.

• • •

Swear It's True

His friends swear it's the truth. A young man employed at the Erie was planning an extended motor trip on his vacation. His friends began telling him just how to go about conditioning his car for the trip. Oil changed, radiator cleaned, motor gone over, tires pumped up, etc.

And the vacationer took it so much to heart that he drove his car to a filling station here and had all tires deflated and "fresh" air pumped into them.

Giant "Pickle"

Perhaps the largest cucumber grown in this part of Ohio in a number of years is being exhibited by Weaver Kelly, a Marion shopman who lives one half mile north of Meeker.

Grown on his truck garden patch the cucumber weighs three pounds, nine ounces setting a record for size, Kelly said.

The giant "pickle" is nine and one half inches long, five and one half inches wide and resembles a watermelon or squash more than it does its own species.

Proof

Dr. C. E. Turley, pastor of Epworth M. E. church, is an enthusiastic gardner, and proud of his success as a dirt farmer. Everyone he meets hears about the garden. To prove to a rather skeptical church editor he sent five large tomatoes to her desk the other day just before he left for the Ohio conference sessions in Columbus.

"Code" for Teachers Includes Using Rod To Scare Pupils

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 16.—"Why not put a whipping post in front of every school and scare pupils into behaving by letting them see one of their classmates whipped every once in a while?"

This was the comment of Dr. B. O. Skinner, state director of education, on the "list of rules for being a good teacher" as proposed recently by the president of an Ohio board of education which included the suggestion that teachers "use the rod, on juvenile offenders in front of other pupils but do not use it often."

Other "rules for being a good teacher," as advanced by the board of education executive were: "read detective stories, own radios and movie cameras, keep a youthful viewpoint and a close mouth, read 12 good books a year and attend community dances."

"As for radios, that idea is fine. But for movie cameras, how can the teachers afford them with the salaries that are being paid?"

Read at least 12 good books a year, the director urged. The teacher must read both general and professional literature, he said. The admonition to be close-mouthed Dr. Skinner considers one of the most important.

"That's one of the big faults of our profession," he said. "We talk too much about what we're doing in the classroom, we discuss our pupils in public, talk about our jobs. You seldom see lawyers or doctors, for example, discussing their professions when they're out in society."

Dr. Skinner dismisses the question of attendance at dances with the advice, that teachers should attend community affairs of all kinds. Above all, he said, the teacher should live up to the ideals of his community.

The education department head offered his own set of rules for teachers. His three-point code is as follows:

1.—Keep a youthful viewpoint.
2.—Keep alive, stay abreast of the times.
3.—Use tact and diplomacy.

WILLIAM, BLONDELL TEAM AGAIN FOR PICTURE AT OHIO

JOAN BLONDELL

Considered by reviewers one of the best of the sophisticated comedies is "Goodbye Again," the picture which will be shown at the Ohio four days beginning Sunday.

Important to theatergoers is that it brings Warren William and Joan Blondell together again. They clicked in "Three on a Match" and "Gold Diggers of 1933." Supporting them are Genevieve Tobin, Helen Chandler, Ruth Donnelly and Wallace Ford.

The photography is bound to be good. George Barnes, Miss Blondell's husband, was the camera man. The smart costumes were designed by Orry-Kelly.

For Monday, Sept. 18

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for a rather lively state of affairs but accompanied by delays, disappointments and disagreeable situations to confront and be disposed of. This may consist of dragging into the open a secret enmity or vicious condition of a sinister and subtle nature calling for drastic treatment. However, this may best be accomplished by refraining from bitter and undignified words.

Those whose birthday it is may have a lively and interesting year, but one of setback, delays and disappointments. A sinister and subtle state of affairs may call for drastic treatment, but wise actions and control of tongue and temper may bring about happier conditions and healthier [illegible]

JEWS HERE TO HOLD SERVICES

New Year Will Be Celebrated Wednesday Night, Thursday Morning.

At sunset Wednesday, the Marion Congregation of Israel will join the Jewish people over the world in beginning the celebration of the festival of New Year, known in Hebrew as Rosh Ha-Shanah.

The Marion congregation will hold services Wednesday at 8 p. m. and Thursday at 10 a. m. in the temple in the Marion National Bank building. George Kleinmaier, a member of the congregation will conduct the service.

On Wednesday Jewry will usher in the year 5694. Originally, the Hebrew New Year marked the opening of the agricultural and economic year in Palestine. It began in autumn because with fall there followed in regular succession the seasons of the sowing of seeds, of the ripening of the corn, of the harvest and gathering of the fruits.

However, as the agricultural background faded away from Jewish life, the rabbinic authorities shifted the New Year's day to memorialize the beginning of creation and endowed the holiday with a solemn meaning. Based upon scriptural passages it became the Judgment Day of the Jewish calendar, the day upon which God judges all the inhabitants of the earth.

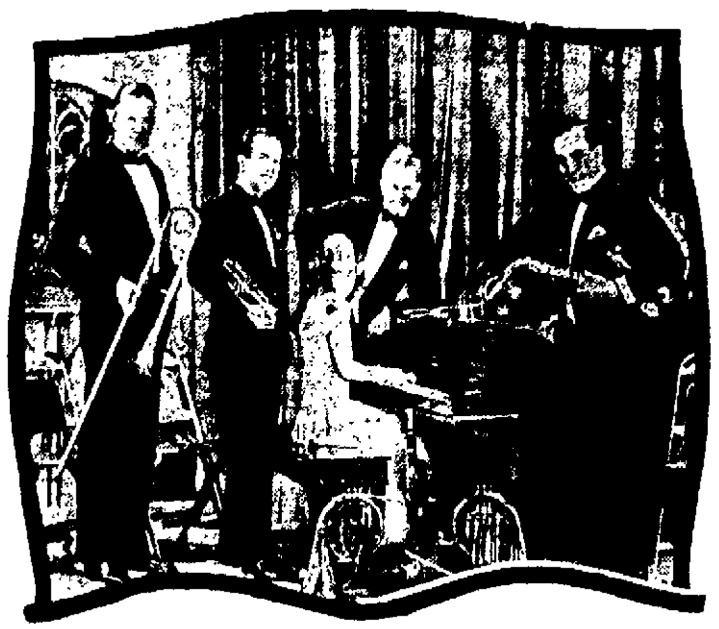
The church has a part to play in the world today, the part [illegible] present God's Perfect Man [illegible] a world lost in sin. People out of the church are turning to people within the church for help and strength. And her answer is the old story of Jesus and His love. He gave relief to the poor and needy; comfort and encouragement to the weak, and His church can do no less. What an opportunity for doing good is presented to the church today.

Now is the time for Christians to rally their forces together and help out all they can in this present crisis. Of course it will take every ounce of strength the church has to let the world know she has not fallen from the standard of her Lord and Master. But is it not worth all that she puts into it? God's people cannot fail now, when the call for real service in a distressed world is at hand. His church is marching on and His people have a part in the world's greatest hour, now.

Petrie Quintet On Fall Festival Program Sept. 29



PETRIE NOVELTY QUINTET

A varied program of frankly humorous and entertaining music combined with themes of a more serious nature will be presented by the Petrie quintet in the first of the series of four fall festival numbers Friday night, Sept. 29, at the Chautauqua pavilion, under the sponsorship of the Woman's Home Missionary society of Epworth M. E. church.

Brasses, violin and piano are included in the 13 instruments used by the group in the musical program. The selections range from stirring, sparkling and rhythmic band music to soft dreamy waltz selections and operatic favorites making up a program of unusual interest and charm.

Herbert Petrie, manager and leader of the company, was a solo cornetist under John Philip Sousa and has had years of experience not only as a solo artist but as a teacher and director. The three other men in the company have been with him for five seasons.

Several of the instruments used have been made especially for Mr. Petrie and have their part in artistically embellishing the program.

The quintet has been heard by a number of Marion residents having appeared on the program at Lakeside institute this year.

The festival is the first of its kind to be sponsored by the society. Proceeds will be used to finance a missionary pledge. Tickets are on sale by the members.

THE romance of the ocean and the prairies and of the sturdy folk who were the woof and weave of the country's pattern is told in "Blue Meadows" by [illegible]. The story may not be rated as a lasting one but there is no denying it provides the reader with a vivid picture of the seafaring folk and an interesting character study of two women, mother and daughter, who seek to dominate the lives of their husbands and the daughter's son.

Abigail Hosmer rules the sea from the time she takes up her residence in the old white house on the cliff as the bride of Lige Booker, last in line of generations of seafaring men. With the birth of their daughter, Martha, Abigail sets out to instill in the mind of the little girl a hatred of the sea.

That she was successful was discovered when Martha marries the mild-mannered and sincere Reverend Norton and accompanies him to his mission field in Dakota. With all her fervor for the work as a minister's wife she finds time to sense material values and through homesteading and purchase, acquires considerable land. Her one aim in life is to see little David grown to manhood and a successful minister.

Martha is not unmindful of David's love of the sea, as the reader's guess, but her own goal is all that matters. It is a serious time in the Norton home when the model of the Valhalla, Grandpa Lige's fishing vessel, arrives as a Christmas gift for David. Its life at the Norton's is short as it is soon sent to the children's hospital.

David's illness, the result of his being caught in a blizzard when he steals away to an adjoining town to see a "sea" picture, brings about his departure for his grandfather's home to recuperate. An accident while out rowing lands him on a fishing boat and brings Martha in haste to her father's home.

The battle between Martha and her father for David's independence is one of wills. Martha returns home, beaten perhaps, but not conquered, and all is peaceful again in the fisherman's home.

Luke 17:11-19.

11. And it came to pass, as He went to Jerusalem, that He passed through the midst of Samaria and Galilee.

12. And as He entered into a certain village, there met Him ten men that were lepers, which stood afar off:

13 And they lifted up their voices, and said, Jesus, Master, have mercy on us.

14. And when He saw them, He said unto them, Go shew yourselves unto the priests. And it came to pass that, as they went, they were cleansed.

15. And one of them, when he saw that he was healed, turned back, and with a loud voice glorified God.

16. And fell down on his face at His feet, giving Him thanks; and he was a Samaritan.

17. And Jesus answering said, Were there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine?

18. There are not found that returned to give glory to God, save this stranger.

19. And He said unto him, Arise, go thy way: thy faith hath made thee whole.

The Ten Lepers

ONLY in the gospel of Luke do we find this lesson of Christ cleansing the ten lepers, and the thankfulness of the one who was a Samaritan.

There are at least two entire chapters in the book of Leviticus, which means law book, that are given over to the rules or laws of how lepers should live and be treated.

Jesus was on His last journey to Jerusalem when He was attracted by a group of ten men, who were ill with leperosy. His fame as a physician had spread far, so it was quite natural when this group of unclean men recognized Him, they wanted to be made clean.

In His usual sympathetic manner Christ made them well and told them to go show themselves to the priests (Lev. 13:49) Their law would not allow them to mingle with those who were not lepers, until they were cured and had shown themselves to be cured. (Lev. 13:46)

Only one of these ten men were thankful enough to return to tell the Saviour. This man's gratitude, given to Jesus with a recognition of the Supreme Power, from Whom this blessing came, gave Jesus a desire for something higher for this one Samaritan. This man's faith illustrates again the principle exemplified so often in the gospels, "according to your faith be it unto you." Just what you believe Jesus could do for you, He does: man's faith never outruns the ability of Jesus, and through Him, God's willingness to bless them.

Easier Banking.

President Roosevelt now turns a part of his attention to the banking situation where credit stringency has been one of the obstacles on the way to national recovery. Banks, remembering the difficult experiences of the last two years, have been ultra-conservative and have, for the most part, adopted the policy of making loans only in cases where the collateral is abundant and where, also, repayment may be made practically on call.

Such a situation does not fit well with the usual procedure in banking transactions. Credit to be useful must also be flexible that borrowers may be freed from the prospect of a quick call for the cash so long as the security remains ample.

One of the aims of the President is to restore banking to such a sound basis that the business of borrowing and lending will resume its normal practices and that funds will be made available for carrying on commerce and industry in the ordinary way.

New federal laws guaranteeing bank deposits become effective Jan. 1 and this day is taken as the logical time for starting the new deal in finance. Many banks now operating under conservators will be opened before that time, the President hopes, and he has a program for putting government assistance strongly behind those institutions which have the backing of their own communities. Only those banks which are hopelessly insolvent will remain closed after his program gets under way, he believes.

Nothing will contribute more effectively to general recovery than a complete return to normalcy in the banking situation. With money available in the usual way, industrial program and commercial developments can be carried out to the mutual advantage of all.

Pampered Prisoners.

Pampering of influential prisoners has been one of the scandals of the American prison system and the action of Warden P. E. Thomas of the Ohio penitentiary in demoting a deputy warden who allowed an ex-banker to turn his sentence into a vacation is a commendable gesture toward making the practice less general.

A great wave of humanitarianism has swept through the penal systems of the country in recent years and so long as it remains within reason this meets with general approval but when kindness is carried to the point where the ends of justice are subverted the practice must be broken up.

In the present case the "convict" attended baseball games and wrestling matches accompanied by the deputy warden and spent several nights at a city hotel.

All of this is indefensible, not because of its effect on the individual but because it is destructive of the morale of the prisoners in general. It is almost universally true that prisoners accorded special privileges are men of standing with money at their disposal. The slightest show of favoritism toward men of this class arouses in the others a feeling of social injustice which defeats the regenerative motives of a penal institution.

The ends of justice, so far as the Cincinnati banker are concerned, may not have been defeated by the holidays granted him by an over-indulgent deputy warden but they were weakened in their effect on the other prisoners who knew of the circumstances. In the light of these conditions, Warden Thomas acted with restraint in providing mere demotion as the penalty for this too-friendly subordinate.

Gospel of Living Wage.

Rev. Albert E. Day, former Ohioan and now pastor of a large Baltimore church, preached the new gospel of bread on every table and a living wage for every family when he appeared before the annual conference of northeastern Methodists.

"To make the necessities of life available to all is to set man free," was the golden text of this youthful minister whose creed has always contained a large portion of humanitarianism.

Dr. Day is not a theorist when he speaks of social problems. His activities have included many practical accomplishments for the adjustment of economic inequalities. He was credited while pastor of a Pittsburgh church with leadership in settling a difficult transportation strike, he has taken an active part in relieving the condition of Pennsylvania miners and he has not hesitated on other occasions [illegible] coat and go to battle [illegible].

Behind his [illegible] economic [illegible] Methodist [illegible] ers who do not [illegible] of the doors of [illegible] with all the majesty of [illegible] Jehovah and de[illegible].

Dr. Day [illegible] the new deal [illegible] warned his audience [illegible] communism, fascism [illegible] tarism and he did not [illegible] three is preferable [illegible] odists to lay aside [illegible] President because of [illegible] bition [illegible] program for bringing [illegible] food to the hungry.

It is a little unusual to find a [illegible] espousing the cause of the [illegible] in a practical way as Dr. Day has undertaken throughout his ministry but there is inspiring precedent. We have the story of the 5,000 who were fed in the desert beside Bethsaida whence they had come to hear a new Teacher upon whom the glory of God descended shortly afterward in that marvelous miracle of the transfiguration.

Transitory Strikes.

Excepting for the fact that the nation is in transition, the number of strikes occurring throughout the country would be alarming. When viewed with an understanding that great changes are taking place in the economic structure, they lose much of their menace.

The depression years were practically free from strikes because there was nothing to strike for. Employers were not making a profit and operations were down to the point where only a few of the regular workmen were employed. In many cases plants were going principally in order to keep the men working as long as possible and the number of employers who remained in action principally from the altruistic motive of relieving unemployment would be interesting if the statistics could be obtained.

Then came the return of industrial activity and with it the enactment of the NRA including the establishment of minimum wages, maximum hours and the long-disputed principle of the employes' right to collective bargaining through representatives of their own choosing.

Strikes followed immediately, often before the industry had been given the opportunity to work out its recovery code. In a number of cases these were holidays rather than actual strikes and the bright spot in which otherwise might be an ominous cloud is the rapidity with which many of these have been ended.

The transition has resulted, quite naturally, in certain misunderstandings and government agencies, worked far beyond anything contemplated in the recovery act, have been feverishly active in removing these difficulties. It has been remarkably successful and has accomplished some notable fusions in the divergent viewpoints of capital and labor.

Every great recovery from depression has been attended by labor disputes. None heretofore has had such machinery for their adjustment as is available at this time and the industrial skies are brightening.

Old Problems Return.

Awakening business activity has thrown the troublesome parking problem back into the laps of police departments which were reasonably free from work along this line during the depression when many persons left their automobiles at home and parking spaces were to be found in reasonable abundance in downtown sections of most cities.

With the revival of industry and trade, more drivers brought out their cars, many bought new ones and the downtown traffic increased tremendously. In nearly every city this problem of handling the cars of prospective shoppers has resumed its place as one of the perplexing things which city officials must face.

It is no less the problem of the business men since business depends to a very considerable degree on the ease with which shoppers may reach the buying centers. Any city which can work out a plan to assure buyers that they will be able to find a convenient place for their cars will go a long way toward inviting and holding trade.

The entire problem will be solved if some way may be devised which will prevent any owner from leaving his car in a shopping district for an unreasonable length of time. This probably is best accomplished by a parking limit which the police will enforce within reason. Practically every city has such an ordinance but they were generally neglected for the last two years. It is now time to consider their enforcement.

THE PASSENGER PIGEON

The consensus among [illegible] is that the passenger pigeon became extinct with the death of an aged female bird that was kept in the Cincinnati zoo some years ago. Birds reported as having been seen from time to time are really members of some other species, the [illegible] says.

This is strongly supported by the fact that the Smithsonian institution has had a standing offer of $5,000 for a [illegible] pair of these birds ever since the [illegible] Cincinnati zoo died, and it [illegible] been claimed.

Much has been written [illegible] the subject by persons of no scientific knowledge of the subject and who have not even accurate information as to the history of the pigeons. One author refers to the sudden appearance of the pigeons in 1868 and 1869. There are many persons still living who remember seeing flocks of the pigeons for some time after that. There were considerable flocks of them even as late as 1873. But the end did come so quickly that there is much support for the theory they were wiped out by a deadly disease that attacked them in large numbers.

New York Day By Day

NEW YORK, [illegible] 16.—I was interviewed today. [illegible] those of us in the solitary [illegible] now and then. The interviewer was a personable Miss from a college pa[illegible]. She was as unused to [illegible] as I to being interviewed. [illegible] was mutual.

She sat on a [illegible] plush bench in front of my desk [illegible] and began: "What was your first newspaper salary?" Unconsciously [illegible] a tender area of memory. [illegible] "Two bucks a week." Then of a sudden [illegible] one of those rarities Will Hogg used [illegible] a lucid interval."

I halted proceedings while I sent across to the Waldorf for a public stenographer. [illegible] exactly what was said [illegible] and "she" fashion? And [illegible] two birds with one stone—an article for her and a column for [illegible]. Here it is anyway.

She: Who influenced you most to take up newspaper work?

He: [illegible] Johnson, a small town newspaper [illegible].

[illegible]

He: Because I heard he got $18 a week and [illegible] everything.

• • •

She: Has there ever been a time when you wished you had gone into some other [illegible]?

He: [illegible] I watched Lindbergh drive up Fifth avenue on his return from France. That made everything else look rather silly.

She: What do you mean by that?

He: I scarcely know. It just popped out.

She: Why [illegible] you never write of politics or world [illegible]?

He: I leave those topics to weightier minds.

• • •

She: Do you know most of your readers think you are roly-poly and bald?

He: I wouldn't know about that. You can see for yourself it is libel.

She: Would you mind standing up and turning around?

He: I would. But I warn you—I creak in the [illegible].

She: How many papers do you write?

He: I don't know precisely. Considerably more than 300.

• • •

She: Every writer has a theme running through his stuff. What would you say is yours?

He: O, I should say huckleberry pastures and the clank of cowbells.

She: Do you have many interruptions while turning out your columns?

He: Many. But not so interesting as this.

She: You know how to compliment.

He: I have my moments. You should catch me in a hammock with a mandolin.

• • •

She: You have written New York is the ideal city. Is there anything you think it lacks? That is, something very essential?

He: Outside of the feeling of hills, nothing.

She: Do you still wear all those noisy shirts and neckties I've read about?

He: I rainbow a little now and then. Somebody has to with Jimmy Walker away.

She: Even that green house robe you wear could not exactly be called modest.

He: It could be if one wanted to lie uneffectually.

• • •

She: In your personal piffle I don't remember of you telling what word you have misspelled more than any other?

He: I always spell Adirondack with three a's. What is yours?

She: Please, I am interviewing.

He: I stand corrected. Man lost all rights long ago.

She: I notice the books in this room are modern. Do you think modern writers are beating the old timers?

He: Very few outdistanced Swift. And Chaucer is still pretty good.

She: I must be going. It was nice of you to see me.

He: It was good of you to come. Those barking hyenas in the hall won't bite. They are just a couple of lilly-livered bluffers.

Glancing Backward

TEN YEARS AGO.

It was Sunday, Sept. 16, 1923.

The Marathon club football squad held its first practice at Garfield park. Wesley Griffin, former Harding High star, was manager and coach.

The campaign to raise $20,000 to build a new and larger edifice was launched by the congregation of Salem Evangelical church at a meeting addressed by Rev. Timothy Lehmann of St. John's Evangelical church of Columbus.

Hundreds of persons visited the fairgrounds to witness workouts of horses stabled there for the county fair races during the coming week.

Marion [illegible] baseball team defeated the [illegible] at Lincoln park, 10-9 with C. Sharr[illegible] pitching for the locals.

Miss [illegible] M. Hopkins and Walter H. [illegible] of [illegible] township, were united in marriage at the Prospect Reformed church by Rev. [illegible] G. Klotz.

[illegible] 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] M. Butler of Agosta, died in the city hospital of burns suffered when her dress caught fire from a bonfire the preceding day.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Tuesday, Sept. 16, 1913.

It was announced in London that Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, founder of the militant suffrage movement, would try to meet President Wilson personally when she visited the United States.

Mrs. [illegible] Simonton, 64, died at her home on [illegible] avenue.

A survey just completed showed that there were 20 Marions in the United States. The same survey showed that Marion county [illegible] was bearing names that were not duplicated in the entire country. These were [illegible], Green Camp, Morral and [illegible].

It was announced that 56 applications had [illegible] with the Marion county liquor [illegible] for saloon licenses, one of which was for a wholesale license. The city of Marion [illegible] with 41. Prospect was second with six.

Mrs. Lewis Uhl entertained the members of the [illegible] club at her home on John street.

Miss Mayme Winch entertained the clerical force of the first and second floors of the Frank Bros. & Co. store at a miscellaneous shower at her home on West Center street in honor of Miss Blanche Morrow, who was to be married soon to Emmett Stifler.

ON THE WAY.

With Huey at the receiving end of a long-deferred and eminently deserved black eye, and the NRA down to working basis, we seem set now to go somewhere.—Lexington, Ky., Herald.

Washington And Wall Street

BY GEORGE DURNO

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—When Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy T. Helvering left the White House the other day and announced presidential approval of a campaign to collect a billion dollars in delinquent income taxes he didn't tell half the story.

Back of this simple statement lies an administration decision to put on the gadfly act with some of our more notorious tax dodgers.

In the near future look for some strong-arm methods by the treasury.

It isn't as easy to collect income taxes as the form you get every March would indicate.

Bankers hamstring the process by selling stocks to their wives at the end of the year at a loss and buying them back after Jan. 1 at the original price. Racketeers and gangsters beat the rap by concealing all tangible assets.

Politicians seem to be able to avoid payments by mere virtue of being politicians.

If Helvering and his boys are going to carry out the "conservative estimate" of collecting $300,000,000 of the billion right off and the rest through court proceedings, there is only one avenue of approach—take it from an insider at the internal revenue bureau.

That is through a campaign of harassment. It has proved highly effective in certain cases of the past. It works wonders that the intricate technicalities of law can't touch and it usually brings about a compromise out of court.

Pressure

Remember how the efficient treasury agents were even able to tell where Al Capone bought his jeweled watch fobs, belt buckles and suspenders when Public Enemy No. 1 was brought into court for income tax evasion?

Those same agents can be just as painstaking in probing the private affairs of other individuals. They can ascertain when a man transferred all his property to his wife, who made phony stock deals and who hired safe deposit boxes or opened bank accounts under assumed names.

Capone was ready to compromise when they got through with him even to the added extent of a short jail sentence. Other considerations took him into court.

Similar treatment can be applied to "respectable men of the community" as easily as they were to Capone.

All the money won't be collected from gangsters—although there is one New York bootleg king who undoubtedly will get special treatment in view of an unsatisfied $3,000,000 judgment against him which has gone by default so far.

Even sedate corporations that raise pious hands to the sun and then sneak in for heavy refunds may get a look-see from the treasury agents.

Privately, internal revenue officials admit that such methods are the best way of shaking hidden taxes out of people. There are so many quirks in the law that court proceedings are a gamble—to say nothing of costly.

The record of the board of tax appeals on court cases has been about fifty-fifty. It is cheaper to scare the culprit into a compromise.

For this reason those who know say that if Helvering expects to collect a billion he must really have about twice that amount on his secret books with which to play.

Farmers

A storm is brewing out in the farming regions and heading straight toward Washington, our agents on the agricultural front report.

Competent observers just back from the rural districts say the farmers aren't satisfied with the way federal relief agencies are working. (Although this is nothing new). Primarily the agricultural adjustment administration isn't functioning fast enough to suit the tillers of the soil.

They want inflation or something else in the way of aid.

A case is reported from Kansas of a man who wanted to see just what measure of relief he could get from the New Deal.

Last March he wrote the land bank for a $5,000 loan on his farm. The last week of August he got a form letter in reply advising him his application had been received and would be taken under advisement.

Tape

The home loan board, designed to derrick mortgages off the necks of city dwellers, is coming in for plenty of criticism along the same lines.

Ten days ago the private records of the board's treasurer showed only nine loans actually had been consummated. There may have been a few more in the interim. A Pittsburgh realtor is authority for the statement 30,000 applications for mortgage relief were on file. Not more than a dozen have been approved by the district office.

Each one must come to Washington for final okay.

It isn't necessary to wait until a code is signed and in operation to look for chiseling, overworked NRA officials declare in their few off-hours.

The oil code contained a price-fixing provision. The auto men succeeded in getting a concession in the open-, closed-shop controversy. Ever since, industries of major consequence have been fighting bitterly for similar advantages.

The NRA men compare this attitude of big business with the hundreds of little fellows who are eager to go along fully with the Blue Eagle.

Without meaning to be facetious they say the big boys should sit up and take notice when helpful voluntary gestures come from the oyster shell crushers, the curled hair industry, the corn cob pipe men, manufacturers of ecclesiastical statuary and the toothpick fashioners.

By JAMES McMULLIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—Contract bridge and jigsaw puzzles are all very well in their way but Wall Street would rather play inflation poker than anything else.

Interest in the game was suddenly revived this week, all because Bernard Baruch and Secretary Wallace passed a few remarks. Most of speculative New York wants to bet the same way at the same time and it doesn't take much more than a whisper from the second cousin of the deputy administrator in charge of the code for the false teeth industry to start them laying cash on the line.

The best informed local sources don't see any real change in the situation. Devaluation or currency expansion are still distinctly possible but not in the near future. The talk you hear is part propaganda with a purpose and part pressure from those who have been sold the idea that inflation will really help.

Opinion

Wise opinion was in no way surprised when Secretary Wallace apparently reversed himself for the second time in two weeks. They didn't think his farmer constituents would care for his implication that inflation wasn't quite the right prescription for their ailments. New York understands that pressure from the agricultural districts has been terrific since commodities began their latest sinking spell.

The propaganda with a purpose has three main targets.

1. To stir up a little speculative interest—not shoot the moon stuff, but enough to give the grains and cotton a noticeable boost. This supposedly will appease the farmers until stronger measures become advisable.

2. To quiet political agitation until NRA gets a more thorough work-out. Congressmen have been hearing from the home folks and are getting het up about the delay in using the Thomas amendment.

3. To scare the banks into loosening up on credit. Most of the big banks are strongly opposed to currency doctoring. The implication is that that's what they will get unless they do their stuff on credit expansion. The only hitch is that New York banks at least are more afraid of becoming non-liquid than they are of inflation itself.

Tenacious

Wall Street may be—and is—derogatory in its comments about the Committee for the Nation but there's one thing it can't deny. The committee certainly cleaves to its objective with a bulldog grip.

Their latest search for recruits takes in the banks. The idea is to prove that the deflated price level caused all the banker's woes and that the bankers themselves have been "unjustly blamed." The remedy of course is revaluation. This drive hasn't gained much ground in New York but apparently dozens of smaller banks are delighted with the theory.

A New York banker with a sharp tongue comments: "Why wouldn't they be? If you've been blaming yourself for your unpopularity, it must be nice to have someone tell you it wasn't your fault at all."

Reef

The inflation ship may run aground on the uncharted reef of labor opposition before it reaches its destination.

Most labor leaders have avoided committing themselves publicly on the subject. They have enough battles in their hands without getting entangled in an unnecessary scrap with farm opinion. But insiders will tell you that such leaders as Frances Perkins and Leo Wolman are privately very much opposed. They believe that an artificial increase in prices would come right out of the wage-earners hide. They will have plenty to say in the administration's inner councils if and when the real thing becomes imminent.

Currencies

Big time speculators—and quite a few smaller fry—are taking a sudden interest in the foreign exchange markets. Foreign departments of New York banks are doing a rushing business in exchange transactions despite official restrictions.

The wise boys don't agree about what's going to happen. Some are gambling that France will go off gold, others that both the pound and the dollar are bound to rise in terms of the metal.

The best dope has it that the British are dealing new cards. Financial London is deliberately trying to cheapen gold to ease the pressure on France and help her stay on the metal. British financial commitments in France are such that French defection would be a paralyzing blow. Advocates of the cheaper pound may not like it but they will have to take a back seat for a while. The British have so many irons in the fire it must be hard to know which to pull out but if they don't know the answer nobody does.

Gold

Since we slapped an embargo on gold exports licensed purchases of gold for the arts have risen 500 per cent and exports of semi-finished gold products about 600 per cent. What's more, it all came from legitimate sources. Swiss jewelers showed a particular yen for gold watch cases without the works. These could be melted down at a modest profit of $7 an ounce.

Nobody ever accused the Swiss—or their American connections—of being dumb.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The battleship "New Mexico" [illegible] been refitted and improved [illegible] cost of $10,000,000, is sent on [illegible] the navy calls "a shakedown cruise." The taxpayers of [illegible] country were also sent [illegible] "shakedown cruise" when ten millions were thrown away [illegible] a floating target for air bombs in case war should come.

Consider your intelligent [illegible] try, that scraps new and [illegible] ished battleships of modern [illegible] to oblige some smooth-tongued foreigner at a naval conference, then squanders ten million on an obsolete type of ship.

France worries about the gold basis. She still has eighty-two billion francs worth of gold in her vaults. She fears it may be impossible for her to remain a "gold nation" with the Yankee dollar and British pound sterling slipping downward.

This country also worries a little about gold, wondering why the dollar was kicked off the gold basis and reduced to sixty-odd cents, and dollars less plentiful than they were before gold was abandoned.

It is a solemn truth that "nobody understands money."

Washington reports an early "definite announcement of the immediate monetary policy of the United States." Also that the government will define the status of the dollar. Those that have a dollar will be much obliged. Banks Spread Afar

Banking and financing are back on the world-wide basis of ancient days when the Medici sent ships to the edge of the Bosporus and had men in Far Asia and all over Europe. It is interesting to see in the new board of directors of New York's National City bank, second biggest bank in the world, names of men that live 3,000 miles from New York. For instance, John Francis Neylan, a powerful young lawyer of San Francisco, and his fellow-townsman, A. P. Giannini.

The National City, like Mr. Aldrich's Chase bank, and other great banks, now spreads over the world, with branches in Japan, China, India.

Upton Sinclair, who once wrote about the slaughter house in Chicago, and attracted attention, will stop being a Socialist, become a Democrat and run for governor of California.

This is part of his platform: When a rich man dies Sinclair would confiscate everything above $50,000 and he would take [illegible] of all incomes above $50,000.

Cynics believe that Mr. Sinclair must have $50,000, but they are mistaken. He is sincere in his belief that you can make the world better by discouraging men of exceptional ability.

If he lived in Africa he would say to the African chief, "You can't have more than one fat wife, no matter how many lions you kill." It is wise to give a chief that kills lions as many fat wives as he wants, and to let an able, constructive American have a few extra millions. He can't take them with him.

METHODISTS SEEK EFFICIENT METHOD

Study of District Superintendent Plan Proposed.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 16 — A study of the district superintendent plan of handling church questions would be undertaken by the Ohio conference of the Methodist Episcopal church under a resolution adopted by the laymen's association.

Meeting in connection with the annual conference here, the laymen asked Bishop E. H. Hughes to appoint a committee of five ministers to make the study with a view to making district superintendencies more effective.

Judson J. McKim of Cincinnati, president of the lay assembly said his group desired to determine whether or not the present plan is providing a corresponding constructive leadership to the districts. It was suggested the superintendent might work more effectively with just a few churches in each district rather than continue the present quarterly meetings.

TWO PRIZE CALVES ARE SOLD AT FAIR

Two Hereford calves raised by H. D. Wilson and son Horace, of one mile south of Norton, were sold yesterday at the Marion County fairgrounds to the J. D. Wise & Son grocery on East Center street and to Hotel Harding.

The sale was private and the price paid was not made public, but Mr. Wilson said it was a "premium price." Shortly before the sale the two calves were placed fifth and eighth in the judging. The calf sold to the grocery weighed about 950 pounds and the calf purchased by the hotel weighed about 1,000 pounds, Mr. Wilson said.

WILL THE RELATIVES OR friends of Jimmy Riddell, Redell or Randal communicate with the Cottage Hospital, Elston? This man was found unconscious and is believed to be a survivor of the wrecked coastal steamer Alice Arden. He appears to be suffering from loss of memory.

HARRY — COMMUNICATE AT ONCE; very imp[illegible]; everything is O. K. Sister Gus[illegible]

WHO is this victim of the sea's fury? What is his babbling of emeralds, intrigue, murder?

WAS it coincidence only that brought two women to the hospital, one seeking her husband Jimmy Riddell, the other her cousin Jim Randal?

THE answers to these questions are woven into a thrilling, gripping story—

Outrageous Fortune

by Patricia Wentworth

● Caroline Leigh reached the hospital five minutes after Nesta Riddell had left with the man who didn't know his name but whom she claimed as her husband.

● Caroline might have been satisfied about Nesta's identification until she learned about the paper found in the man's pocket, a scrap apparently torn from a letter and bearing one word—a signature—"Caroline."

● And because she "played a hunch," Caroline was dragged into the Riddell affair, a weird train of events, a nightmare of suspense, with a dramatic climax that transformed blind despair into radiant happiness.

Renewing Old Shingles

Are the shingles on your house beginning to look old and shabby?

If they are, Creo Dipt stains will bring back their original color and protect them against decay. Creo-Dipt stains are easy to apply. Their colors last for years and their cost is low.

Don't spoil the soft colors of the shingle side-walls or roof of your home by applying paint or cheap stains. "Paint should never be used on shingles, as it makes them appear oily and glossy. Furthermore, paint does not bind properly to a rough surface (such as shingles) and consequently peels and blisters in a short time," according to Carl Leffler of Leffler Paint & Supply company.

Creo-Dipt stains are the only proper material for recoloring and preserving old shingles. Creo-Dipt stains are made from the best pigments, minutely ground, pure oils and a specially refined creosote that preserves wood without injury to color.

Leffler Building Supply Service Fills All Needs

Quality in both paint and building supplies is the watchword of the Leffler Paint & Supply Co. at 116 North High street. The building supply service of the company is one of the most complete in the city and furnishes material for all needs, no matter how large or small.

"Our stock includes everything excepting lumber that is needed for building or remodeling," Carl Leffler said today. "No order is too small or too large. Even if you need only a dime's worth of sand, cement, plaster, or other supplies Leffler's will gladly furnish it for you."

Take your construction problem to Leffler's, where your every need will be supplied. Capable trained men will advise the builder and will recommend a good contractor for the work, if requested.

Glidden Paints, Sold by Leffler's, Famous for Durability and Quality

THE name Glidden is well and favorably known the world over and its reception in Marion and vicinity has been very satisfactory.

One of the chief desires of the Leffler Paint & Supply Co. is to supply this community with GOOD paint. They are distributors for the nationally known Glidden Paints, Varnishes, Lacquers and Enamels the quality line with a money-back guarantee.

Carl W. Leffler says, "For beauty and economy use Glidden paints. When once your house is painted with Glidden's savings have only begun for it will outlast cheap paint by years."

Colors are rich, true and lasting. Beauty of appearance and durability of Glidden's is a practical asset to every property. Included in the list of products is Glidden Motor Car Lacq, produced especially for the finishing and refinishing of automobiles. There is also the Spedene line of automotive finishes which embody the newest developments in paint technology employing synthetic resins. A complete assortment of the most up-to-date shades for automobile and truck refinishing can be found in these two products.

Cars Given New Appearance

Why drive a shabby looking car? With the durable easy flowing, easy applied Glidden Speedenamel, you can make your car look like new. You can do it in a short time for Speedenamel dries in four hours. Paint your car in the morning and drive it in the afternoon. Look at its top! It should be refinished to withstand the wind and rain. Glidden Top Cote will do that. How about your fenders? Paint them with Speedenamel on top. Under the fenders use Speedenamel too. The cost of refinishing your car is small but its improved appearance is great.

Ask for Glidden Auto Products. They will make your car look like new at little cost.

For the home owner, a product for every surface to meet every condition. Leffler's say, let us help you plan the painting and decorating of your home. Come in and see us—ask for one of the Glidden "How to Paint" booklets which gives authentic information pertaining to the beautification of your home. Leffler's also have color cards which are given free of charge. Some of the most outstanding products in the Glidden Quality Line for homeowners are--

For Buildings—Outside—Glidden Endurance Paint Prepared Jap-Spar (The All-Test Varnish), Glidden Endurance Shingle Stains; Glidden Liquid Cement Coating.

For Interior Decoration—Glidden Flat Wall Finish; Endurance Wood Stains; Wearette Interior Varnish; Ad-El-Ite Kalsomine—White, Tints and Positive Colors; Rapid-Cote Varnish—Dries in 4 hours. Speed-Wall Semi-Gloss Finish, Jap-A-Lac 4 Hour Enamel.

For Floors—Floorette Varnish; Concrete Floor Dressing, Colors and White, Glidden Florenamel.

For the Farm—Glidden Barn paint, red and gray, Glidden Implement and Tractor paint.

Keep your home "well painted"—inside and out. To do so will retain that new "prosperous appearance" and the original value, thereby safeguarding the money you first invested.

Skilled Painters Use and Praise Wooster Brushes

According to experienced painters the type and kind of brush used has much to do with the final appearance of any paint job.

Additional to the numerous nationally advertised products sold by Leffler's Paint & Supply company are Wooster brushes, made at Wooster, O. These brushes have a world-wide distribution.

Skilled painters have used and recommended these fine tools for almost a century. They have a quality that has always delighted master artisans.

Wooster brushes are famous for their extra quality, clean, springy bristles that have been carefully blended and hand moulded into perfect working tools.

The quality is there! You can feel it—you can see it—in the pure, black, "solid" Chinese hog bristles that is selected by Wooster's own bristle buyers in China and distant lands. Wooster bristle is the cream of the world's supply.

Striving to make painters' tools that would last longer and be easier to use, Wooster chemists searched for many years for a perfect bristle setting. Finally, they discovered Foss-Set and the Foss-Set process of holding bristles which marked the greatest advance ever made in brush making art.

CREO-DIPT WINS RECOGNITION AS PERFECT ROOFING

It is now approaching the time of year when much thought and attention is given to roofing problems.

No home should be without the protection of a durable fireproof roof. Present day trend is toward colorful asphalt roofing.

Creo-Dipt Roofing sold by Leffler's Paint & Supply company combines in one material all the features of a perfect roof. It is manufactured from the very best raw materials possible to produce for roofing purposes, fabricated or made in one of the best equipped and modern plants in the country under the supervision of trained master workmen who have had years of experience.

HIGHEST GRADE COAL SOLD BY LEFFLER'S

Added to a dominating list and stock of fireproof building materials the Leffler Paint & Supply company is a leading dealer in coal and coke.

With a good coal marketed in convenient sizes to meet varying needs in every household or business establishment, it is easier to keep the average heating apparatus operating at an even constant healthy temperature.

Leffler's recommend Red Parrot coal for heating economy and satisfaction. It is of firm, hard-structure—free from dust—burns with unusual intensity—holds the fire and gives required heat with less fuel.

The HIDDEN DOOR

BY FRANK L. PACKARD

CHAPTER FORTY-SEVEN

House of Death

THEY stepped into the dark shadows of the lane and, silently now made their way along it with Sergeant Mulvey in the lead.

Somewhere ahead Colin knew was the rear of the Wine Press and the alleyway that flanked Michael Barney's specious tobacco store, but it was so dark that he could scarcely see Sergeant Mulvey's form in front of him—so dark, in fact that when finally Sergeant Mulvey halted suddenly Colin bumped into him.

"Here we are!" cautioned Sergeant Mulvey under his breath.

It was much like last night, much like that other door—which could not be many yards away—only that tonight, instead of Buck O'Mara, the big shot of the Mask's murder squad, it was Detective Sergeant Mulvey of the homicide bureau who acted as guide.

Sergeant Mulvey opened the door soundlessly and closed it behind them soundlessly—and then for a full minute they stood motionless listening.

Then Sergeant Mulvey spoke.

"Kind of force of habit," he grunted as the ray from his electric torch stabbed suddenly through the blackness, "even though I know there ain't anybody here." He thrust his wrist watch into the flare. "Twenty minutes yet. Lots of time for a look-see around."

The rooms were comfortless, scantily furnished, containing scarcely the bare necessities—no one giving them a single glance would question the status of old Keppelstein as a miser of the first degree.

By contrast, the mural decorations, untouched, obviously, except by age, since the days when the Wine Press had been in its prime were ludicrously grotesque: here a pointed jungle scene, there a group of nymphs dancing in the moonlight—above a rickety kitchen table! But Sergeant Mulvey seemed little concerned with these details. His flashlight poked persistently and inquisitively into cupboards and corners and out-of-the-way places.

"Nothing down here in the shape of any private wires or that sort of stuff," he announced finally, "unless they're well hidden."

"That trick door opens on the floor above," Colin reminded him.

"Yes, I know. Force of habit again. Well, let's go up."

There was only one room on the second floor, and Colin's eyes followed the round, white circle of light as Sergeant Mulvey's flashlight traveled from the threshold slowly around it. The room ran the entire depth of the house and had once, it was quite obvious, been the cabaret's combination dance floor, bar and main dining room.

Little alcoves, where tables for two, inviting tete-a-tetes, might have been placed, still punctuated the walls at irregular intervals while the walls themselves were adorned with huge plaster casts, depicting scenes even more fantastic than those painted on the walls of the rooms downstairs. The only windows in the room looked out on the street and the shutters of these were tightly closed.

At the rear of the room and stretching across almost its entire breadth were the remains of a bar, a decrepit and woebegone affair now, the mirrors above it streaked and blistered until they were almost beyond recognition. There were no furnishings whatever—just litters of rubbish piled, or rather thrown in heaps here and there about the floor—a veritable cutch of old packing cases, chairs, and various pieces of furniture broken beyond repair and all now covered thick with dust.

Jinx

WHAT is your special jinx? Everyone owns [illegible] it seems and if you don't believe it ask them. If it's housekeepers, everyone knows that if you break one dish two more are bound to follow and one shudders to think what happens if one pulls a boot and puts the left shoe on before the right one. If you spill the [illegible] on a brand new dress the first time you wear it, it doesn't take a [illegible] to yet you in on the fact that bad luck will be your side kick every time you put it on. But what we didn't know until the other day is that whenever a deep and awful silence falls over a roomful of people that it is either 20 minutes after or 20 minutes before the hour.

Circus

SHE was just four years old and it was her first trip to see the circus unload. If she missed anything the family hasn't discovered it as yet, and it goes without saying her grown-up guardian didn't have a dull moment throughout the morning. What's this and what's that, all demanded a trigger answer. "What are they going to do now Uncle John," was her query during a lull when the engine disappeared up the track. Advised that they were going to switch the cars she came right back with the puzzler, "what did the cars do that they're going to be switched?" Neither was she at a loss when it came to describing the various animals and informed her family the zebras were "painted ponies." It's our guess that Alice's wonderland even in its hey-day was a rest cure compared with her first view of a circus.

Jinx

IT'S never too late to pass a good thing along is the opinion of one home manager whose mind isn't wool gathering when it comes to thinking up saving devices. The tedious method of forcing tomatoes through a colander in order to get juice for canning she tells us, (and we're telling you) can be relegated to the junk pile with her invention of placing them in the potato ricer. And it isn't half the wear and tear on fingers and temper.

As a sop for his wounded feelings my father queried with another chuckle, patiently at the memory of Jim's mouth crammed with cake. "I don't believe he needs it. [illegible] long ago was convinced that Jim needs no aid in handling his temperamental wife when she gets too obstreperous. He's like a good-natured mastiff that lets weaker dogs tease him outrageously until his patience gives out. Then Jim, like the mastiff, I fancy, can act most effectively."

When Jim Was Victor

"I quite agree with you," I told him, with amused remembrance of several passages in the lives of our faithful helpers when Jim was distinctly triumphant and Katie subdued for several days afterward. 'Oh' Isn't it heavenly out here?"

"That is the right word," my father said, pausing, with his arm around me, to look out over the vista of lawn, meadows and woodland dipping toward the distant ocean, which is so dear to both of us, and which, flooded with moonlight, was almost unearthly in its radiance.

"But it's also too chilly for you," he said a few seconds later. "Come, let me tuck you up on the couch. But shouldn't you change your gown first?"

I looked down at my evening gown with an apologetic laugh. So swept with fear and hysteria had I been that I had forgotten I was still attired in the new gown I had purchased for Mary's wedding.

"Of course," I answered promptly. "How absurd I am! I'll run up and change to something warm immediately."

Prepared for Edith

"I'll go with you," he said, evidently with the thought of my former tremors vividly in his mind.

I wheeled and, laying my hands upon his shoulders, looked him steadily in the eyes.

"No more tremors tonight," I said. "Between your drastic dis[illegible]" I smiled sidewise at him, "and Katie's comedy I am rapidly convalescing, if not entirely cured. [illegible] stay down here. I shall be less than five minutes."

I was as good as my word, although I was vain enough to select the pair of lounging pajamas which [illegible] had so much admired. My coiffure was still in good condition, I noticed with satisfaction, and when I had freshened my face a bit, I threw around me a light weight lounging robe which Lillian had given me [illegible] and which was as warm as it was attractive.

Homemaker's Question Box

Question—What type of coat is most appropriate for my daughter to wear to school?

Answer—From the standpoint of appropriateness and economy a school coat should be serviceable, comfortable and simple in design. With an attractive sport coat and a neat and becoming sport hat, there really is no excuse for your daughter reaching a so-called awkward age.

If your purse does not permit a fur trimming of good quality, then by all means select a sports type of coat with collar and cuffs of the same material as the coat. This type of coat if of simple lines is always in good style and good taste.

Since the cornerstone of every wardrobe is the coat it is also important that the color be one which will blend with the various winter dresses.

Getting the most genuine pleasure, beauty and economy from a wardrobe is best accomplished through a clothing plan. Children can be taught at a very early age to help in the making of this plan.

It has been said that an overdressed child is an unhappy one. Perhaps if more girls were allowed to help plan their wardrobes we would have fewer unhappy girls.

Driver Barred from Track as Prince Mack Cops Race

Star Philistine Is Held in Check, Judges Charge

O. C. McGregor and Worthy Peter Win Other Events on County Fair Program.

After driving Star Philistine to second position in the second heat of the classified pace on yesterday afternoon's harness race program of the county fair, P. P. Garlough of Springfield was removed to sixth position in the heat and ruled off the track for the remainder of the day. The horse won the first heat.

The judges said this action was taken because Garlough "did not try to win."

When Garlough afterward attempted to return to the track behind Lou Chan in the 2:17 pace, the judges who previously had informed him that he would not be permitted to drive the third heat of the classified race, ordered him off the track. Craig of Marion succeeded him as driver of Lou Chan, and Ford, who had driven Lou Chan in the first heat of the 2:17 event, took the reins of Star Philistine and placed her second in the final heat of the classified pace.

Won First Heat

Star Philistine, with Garlough driving, won the first heat of the classified pace, pulling out ahead of the field to a close finish with Prince Mac, who had led during the greater part of the heat. In the second heat, Amber Wave took the lead with Star Philistine and Prince Mac following close. Whirling into the home stretch, it appeared that Star Philistine had the lead and was headed for victory. Then the three leaders shifted and Prince Mac came into the lead and won the heat.

The judges at this point contended that Star Philistine's driver was not trying and demoted him to sixth position. In the third heat, Prince Mac, getting away in second position, moved up past Wilma and won the heat with Star Philistine, who was in sixth and last position at the half mile wire, coming in as a close second.

Several of the 11 horses in the second race, the 2:22 trot, broke in the back stretch in the first heat but the heat had an interesting finish with O. C. McGregor barely outdistancing Leola Tramp in the home-stretch spurt to the wire. O. C. McGregor also took the next two heats, finishing the second heat nearly two lengths ahead after a sensational spurt of speed just before entering the home stretch. The McGregor gelding, Winnie and Mary K. led the other eight horses throughout the third and final heat, McGregor finishing first, Mary K second and Winnie third.

Worthy Peter Wins

Horses stretch spurts in the first two heats of the 2:17 pace cinched victory in that event for Worthy Peter. The first heat fell to him easily after he had cleared the field just before entering the home stretch. In the second heat, a similar spurt gave him the lead over Ednos Bonnie, who had paced in the lead position most of the heat. In the third heat, Abe Braden took the lead and held it, finishing first, Worthy Peter trailing in third position.

Two full brother horses were entered in this event. They were Baron Fremore and Lou Chan, both colts of Anna Moore, sired by Baron Chan. Anna Moore and cold Lou Chan are owned by L. L. Aller of LaRue.

METAL HATS NEW FASHION FOR MEN

By International News Service

MILAN, Italy. Futurist hats are being shown here through the efforts of Filippo Marinetti and other futurist artists. They are exclusively for men's wear and made not only of felt and straw but of celluloid, tin plate and aluminum, possibly to be the better worn with aluminum ties.

The most colorful one is a celluloid fitted with small electric bulbs which can be varied to please the wearer's mood. This type is recommended for dark country roads. A cork hat is in cork and dome shaped made of layers which are connected with tiny zigzag "themes" of cork, giving unlimited air to the hair. This is designed to please Italians who have altogether discarded hats and thereby brought a national industry to the brink of ruin.

Circular disks used instead of films in a new motion picture projector for educational and advertising purposes are claimed by the inventor to be substantial enough to be shown 10,000 times without damage.

Tourney Contests Sunday Will Eliminate 2 Teams

Two teams will be eliminated Sunday afternoon when the third round of the Marion county championship recreation ball tournament is played at Lincoln park. Three games will be played with the first starting at 1:30.

The first game will find two undefeated teams clashing. High's Radio nine and the Walters-Dishennett entry tangle in what should be the main event.

The loser of this battle faces possible elimination for it will play the Shortline Grocers in the third game. The grocers are battling for their life in the tournament for they already have lost one game. Two defeats eliminate a team from the tournament.

The second game will bring together two teams which have lost one game each. Pleasant and Harruff's Tires will be fighting for blood and a chance to stay in the race for the championship.

As an additional attraction the management is playing a women's ball throwing contest. The trophy cup that will be awarded the winning team is on display at the Knight cigar store.

Delaware's second touchdown was made by Wilson who intercepted a pass on the 50 yard line in the third quarter.

DRIVE FOR PENNANT RESUMED BY GIANTS

Great Day of Pitching Gives New Yorkers Wins Over Cubs.

By The Associated Press

The New York Giants, through one great day of pitching, have changed their final western tour into a triumphant march toward the National league pennant.

They all but disposed of the Chicago Cubs' aspirations with one big blow yesterday, winning both halves of a doubleheader, 5 to 1, and 4 to 0, and climbed back to the point where they were when they started west, 7½ games in front of the field. Four clubs still might beat the Giants out, but the fans already have decided the Terrymen are "in."

Even if the Pirates and the Cubs win all their remaining games, the Giants have to capture only six to make the outcome certain.

The St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Braves, 10½ and 12 games behind, respectively, after the Cards took a 9-2 beating from the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Braves trimmed Pittsburgh 10-1, yesterday, are in the race mathematically only.

The Phillies and Cincinnati Reds split a double-bill. Reg Grabowski allowed the Reds only two singles as he won the opener 4-0. Allyn Stout of the Reds came back with a five-hit job and Sparky Adams and Jim Bottomley pounded out a 3-1 triumph for him.

The entire American league program was rained out.

RUN IN NINTH INNING GIVES RED BIRDS WIN OVER MINNEAPOLIS

Final Game Played at Columbus; Ohioans Lead 2 to 1.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 16 — The Columbus Red Birds will be one-up on Minneapolis when the teams resume their playoff for the American Association pennant and the right to meet the International league champions in the little world series.

Columbus gained an edge in the series by winning the third game here last night after having taken the opener Tuesday. The Millers' victory came Wednesday night.

The clubs left today for Minneapolis where, beginning Sunday, they will play until one of them has won four games.

Ray Blades' single with the bases loaded by walks in the last half of the ninth inning gave the Red Birds the run needed to win last night's game, 3 to 2. The Millers gained a two-run lead in the first two innings on home runs by Hauser and Morris.

From then on the Millers went scoreless with Paul Dean pitching until the eighth when he gave way for a pinch hitter. Winford who pitched in the ninth was credited with the victory. George Murray went the route on the mound for Minneapolis.

WHEAT JUMPS NEAR DOLLAR

Four Cent Gain Noted as Public Speculative Buying Increases.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 16—Dollar-a-bushel wheat became a virtual reality today, with a jump of almost 4 cents a bushel.

May delivery reached a peak of 99½ cents, and the market as a whole rose to the topmost level witnesses in about a month. There was no material selling pressure in evidence and brokers reported a pronounced increase of public speculative buying as the day approached an end.

Giving help to price upturns were estimates that wheat export purchases in Canada yesterday totaled as much as 4,000,000 bushels and that 32 hours of welcome rains were reported in the prairie provinces. On the other hand, an undertone of uncertainty prevailed among Chicago traders. A disturbing factor was reiteration of rumors that France was likely to go off the gold standard.

Liverpool advices told of liquidation of wheat holding there because of expected heavy deliveries.

Wool Market.

BOSTON, Sept. 16—Business in wool is quite active and some further advances in prices were made in the latter part of the past week. Resistance to the advancing price tendency slowed up trading early in the week but apparently business in goods helped to overcome the resistance. Prices were higher on a wide range of medium and finer fleeces and very firm to higher on territory and other western grown wools.

HOUSE PERFORATED BY WOODPECKERS

By International News Service

PORTLAND, Ore. — Something must be done about woodpeckers at Gearhart or Horace E. Plummer chief of Portland bureau of buildings is going to have his beach cottage destroyed.

Plummer recently visited his Gearhart cottage and discovered it perforated with woodpecker holes. The ambitious birds had drilled through two layers of shingles and shiplap on the house in many places. Holes had been hammered through some of the heavy studdings. Plummer patched up the holes and returned a few days later to find that five new openings, some two inches in diameter had been bored through the cottage walls.
